After the second volume of "The Gallery" covering the 2005-2006 academic year was published highlighting the sesquicentennial celebration, we were left wondering how to best approach this academic year. With so many major events happening this year - the new Apartment Village and Health and Recreation Center were completed, the Butler Rising Campaign was launched, and the men's basketball team made it to the "Big Dance," running as far as the Sweet Sixteen in the NCAA tournament - we felt the only thing appropriate to sum up this year as well as appropriately follow last year's celebratory theme was "Our Legacy." The exciting happenings of the year will certainly go down in history as part of the Butler legacy - our legacy.

Welcome Week was an exciting time for incoming freshman, as it is every year. They have no idea what they are getting themselves into. Playfair is a strange and crazy way to meet fellow freshmen, but it is also very effective. Each year at Playfair, freshmen are asked to do things such as dance while attached to someone else's back and find all of the people that have a birthday in the same month as their own.

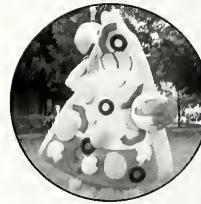

"I still talk to some of the people I met at Playfair," freshman Tara Roberds said. "There are actually a lot of people here that I share my birthday with!"

Not only do freshman experience the overwhelming affects of meeting everyone in their class at once, they are also exposed to Block Party as Welcome Week ends. All of the organizations at Butler line the mall with tables of information to promote their purpose or recruit new members. It is also a great opportunity to get free stuff!

In the fall, two building projects were completed on the Butler campus. The new campus apartments in the Apartment Village were opened for residents in August, although some work was still being done in some buildings and students faced typical problems of new buildings. Many of these problems were ironed out within a few weeks. Juniors and seniors living in the Apartment Village enjoyed private bedrooms in their apartments shared with three other students, a secure student ID card access system, and an excellent location from which they could watch the home football games.

The new Health and Recreation Complex was also opened in the fall, shortly after classes began. Students could benefit from the equipment there or the indoor pool, as well as the counseling center. The center was formally opened at a dedication ceremony.

Throughout the year, the members of the Greek houses on campus are responsible not only for their academic work and involvement in extra-curricular activities outside of their houses, but also philanthropic events sponsored by those houses to which they belong. Many of these events are promoted across the campus and not just to the Greek community. These events also often last for more than a day, with things like penny wars being done throughout the week to collect money.

These philanthropic events go to benefit a variety of causes, including nearly everything from the Riley Children's Hospital to Court Appointed Special Advocates to cancer research.

Each year, several men and women return to campus early from the semester break in order to participate in formal recruitment. For many students, formal recruitment is a time to get to know younger students on campus and invite some into their house. For others, it's a time to learn a bit about the houses and decide which house is right for them. Because freshmen are not allowed to join social houses before second semester their first year, most get involved in formal recruitment. Students return to campus the week before classes start up again. By Sunday, they find out which house they have been invited in to. Then, new students get to begin their journey to initiation in those houses.

Butler University's Class of 2007 filled Hinkle Fieldhouse Saturday morning, May 12, to go through the commencement ceremony. Commencement itself was the final event in a week of events seniors were welcome to participate in. Some events included a lunch, a trip to Chicago, a champagne toast with the university president and a baccalaureate ceremony. The class, which was the largest freshman class in Butler history with 976 students, found out during the week that it would also be the graduating class with the highest retention rate, with 822 graduates crossing the stage Saturday morning.

The Student Governance Association, or SGA, has had a busy year. Under the leadership of this year's SGA President, junior Andy Seibert, SGA had another successful year, with a myriad of events held. Included in these events was Flip the Script, a finals treat for students, the band Sister Hazel and Anthony Rapp of "Rent" fame visited campus, and favorites, such as Java Jams and Ethnic Fest. SGA is composed of student representatives from organizations, residential halls, and Greek houses, who meet weekly to raise concerns and vote on issues related to Butler. SGA also serves as a liaison between students and faculty and administration, which helps build a strong relationship.

With its nationally recognized College of Business, it's no wonder that Butler is full of business organizations. Students have the option of joining various business clubs, each focusing on some aspect of business. Economics, finance, public relations, marketing and advertising are just a few of the topics that has its own club dedicated to it. Many clubs offer different speakers and panels which feature business professionals who come and speak to students about their experiences in the business world. Butler's business organizations offer students a chance to begin networking before the even complete their business degrees.

Science and Math Organizations

Butler offers various math and science organizations and clubs that are open to any student with an interest in either field. These organizations offer students a chance to meet other students with similar interests, network with professionals in each field, and gain more knowledge and understanding into the math and science areas. Math and science clubs met bi-weekly or monthly and usually offered students a forum to further their understanding of math and science and to discuss issues with other students.

Music is everywhere at Butler, even for the non-music majors. Butler offers a variety of vocal ensembles, including Men and Women's Glee Club, Freshly Brewed, Butler's premier female a cappella group, and Out of the Dog House, Butler's famous male a cappella group. Members of these groups frequently offer concerts for students to attend and enjoy, often for little or no cost. These groups allow students in other colleges to explore their musical side, without being a JCFA major.

Butler University offers a number of different instrumental ensembles with which students can get involved, even if they are not music majors or in the Jordan College of Fine Arts. Ensembles like the Wind Ensemble, Symphonic Band, Symphony Orchestra, Percussion Ensemble and the Jazz Ensemble perform regularly throughout the year, both on campus in sites like Clowes Memorial Hall, as well as off campus sites.

Several opportunities exist for students to get involved in Fine Arts organizations on campus. With a handful of music organizations (like MENC, Sigma Alpha Iota, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, Kappa Kappa Psi, Tau Beta Sigma, and Mu Phi Epsilon), dance organizations (like Sigma Rho Delta and the new Ballroom Dancing Club), and theater organizations (like Alpha Psi Omega), it would be difficult for any student interested in fine arts organizations to not find his or her niche.

With many Butler students with Pharmacy majors and pre-health majors, it only makes sense that a variety of Pharmacy and Pre-Health clubs and organizations exist on campus. The Pre-Health club is for students exploring and considering careers in medicine and health. Relay for Life, an annual event sponsored by Colleges Against Cancer, is an opportunity for students to raise money and awareness for cancer.

Every Wednesday, students anxiously await the new copy of The Collegian, which often sits right outside their classroom's door. Every Monday, Dawgnet is updated with the latest campus news, reviews, and opinion pieces. Student publications cannot be ignored on Butler's campus. Numerous students participate in these publications, which also include Manuscripts, the student-run literary magazine, and The Gallery, Butler's Yearbook. Through these publications, students work on their journalistic and photography skills and learn things outside the classroom.

Butler is home to a number of chapters of honorary organizations to recognize students who excel academically. Some include Alpha Lambda Delta, Phi Eta Sigma, the National Society of Collegiate Scholars, Phi Kappa Phi and Mortar Board, to name just a few. While some have induction ceremonies in the fall, most choose to induct new members in the spring during honors weekend.

Several organizations exist on Butler's campus to allow students to further explore their faith. Hillel is an outlet for students who follow the Jewish faith. BCC is the common name for the Butler Catholic Community, which holds mass on campus every week during the academic year. Campus Crusade for Christ is an organization for Christian students that meets weekly. Many of the faith-based organizations claim the blue house near Clowes Memorial Hall as their home base on campus.

Several organizations on Butler's campus promote diversity in the community. The types of diversity range from gender-based diversity (such as Dernia) to racial and ethnic diversity (such as the Black Student Union, ASIA and LASO), to diversity of sexual orientation (such as Alliance). This year, a new center was opened to give such organizations a home base. The Efroymson Diversity Center is located in the basement of Atherton Union and provides a more convenient location for all diversity organizations.

Several service organizations exist on Butler's campus. Two of the popular ones, Fall Alternative Break and Alternative Spring Break, are organizations that exist for a single service event each year - a trip to a location away from the Butler Bubble to do service.

Other service organizations at Butler include groups like Circle K, Alpha Phi Omega, and Hampton House.

Ross Hall
Hall is a dormitory that is composed of mostly freshmen and a few sophomores.

The dorm houses mostly male students however it is capable of holding over 100 female residents. The dorm recently received an $80,000 face lift that included new carpet, a new roof, and a new boiler room. Ross Hall offers a great experience for incoming freshmen because it has a community feel to it. Students leave their doors open and often come out of their rooms to allow for an energetic atmosphere. The dorm also hosts a Resident Assistant for each unit. The RA is there to assist the residents in anyway possibly. The units can come together for unit programs that are planned by the RA. This promotes a safe environment for students to get to know each other and have fun while doing it. Overall, Ross is a great place to spend the first year or two of the college experience.

Schwitzer opened its doors to welcome a new group of freshmen women this year. As always there were friendships made that will last for the next three, four, or maybe even five years of college. A community is always formed among the students in Schwitzer and some enjoyed the experience so much that they came back as sophomores or even juniors. The building is made up of 225 rooms that break down into thirteen units. Each unit houses approximately thirty women, has one community bathroom and one Resident Assistant. The RA acts as a friend, peer, and sometimes even a mother as the freshmen adapt to a new living environment and spend their first year of college growing and maturing. Each floor also has a kitchenette for the four units to share.

With the building holding right around 500 students there are plenty of opportunities for memories to be made.

Residential College, more affectionately known as ResCo, was built in 1982. Students can choose to live in this dorm as sophomores. Dorms in ResCo are set up as suites, with two roommates to a room and two rooms to a bathroom. Resco is also the only dormitory to have air conditioning. Each wing of ResCo has a faculty-in-residence. These faculty members usually create programming for their residents to enjoy in addition to the programs their RA's already create. ResCo is said to have a quiet atmosphere more conducive to the increased studying that sophomores may be doing. In addition to the generally quiet atmosphere, each wing and unit has a study lounge that students can use. Students also enjoy ResCo because one of the two cafeterias on campus is located next to its lobby - students can wander down to breakfast or lunch in their pajamas without ever leaving the building.

University Terrace is the Butler-owned apartment complex slightly off campus that has greeted students at the beginning of the school year for the past several years. The unique living environment that UT offers students includes themed floors such as a community service floor, a fine arts floor, and an academic floor. The community service floor requires students to provide service for the surrounding community. The fine arts floor houses students who have the hectic schedule that goes along with being a part of the Jordan College of Fine Arts. The academic floor is located in the basement and is for those students who have a 3.5 GPA or are enrolled in the honors program. The apartments in University Terrace are similar to those that one might find in an off campus apartment complex but UT offers the opportunity to live near campus. This allows students the flexibility of living away from Butler while still being able to walk to class and participate in campus events. the start of the year came the start of a new housing community on Butler's Campus. Juniors and seniors moved into the brand new Apartment Village at the beginning of the school year. The village did have a bit of a rocky start because apartments were not completed upon move in. By the middle of the year most of the apartments were completed. Offering a single bedroom, a shared bathroom, and a common living room and kitchen the apartments were a great compromise for those students who wanted the apartment life while still living on or near campus. This resident hall was built only for upperclassmen which allowed for a more mature living environment. The downfall with the apartments this year was that they were not filled to capacity. Butler hopes to solve this problem by requiring juniors to live on campus next year.

The 2007-2008 year has been one filled with productivity and success for the women of Alpha Chi Omega. Our annual philanthropic event, Frisbee Fling, which benefits the Julian Center, was a huge success! Our chapter was chosen to participate in the IMPACT Alpha Chi Omega program sponsored by our national organization. IMPACT was very beneficial to our chapter as a whole. We were able to set goals about what we wanted to improve in our chapter and discover ways to achieve these goals. Homecoming was another very exciting time for Alpha Chi. We placed second in Yell like Hell and lawn decorations. Alpha Chi also came in third in the canned food drive, Homecoming kickoff, and a walk-off competition. Our annual spring philanthropic event is Walk Against Domestic Violence with the women of Kappa Kappa Gamma which benefits Coburn Place and the Julian Center. It was also very successful. This year's recruitment was great for Alpha Chi. We welcomed 35 new members who were initiated March 22. They have been adjusting to the house well and making us proud. We are certain that the coming year will be another successful one for Alpha Chi, one in which our members will continue to seek the heights.

The Epsilon Beta Chapter of Alpha Phi was established at Butler University in 1967. The women of Alpha Phi have been living in the current location on West Hampton Drive since it was built in 1976. This is the only sorority house to occupy the north side of the street. The chapter celebrates the installation of their sorority, known as Founder's Day, on Oct. 10. Alpha Phi's philanthropy is the Alpha Phi Foundation, which helps support research and education of women's cardiac care and heart disease. This foundation was established in 1956 and is one of the oldest Greek Foundations. Bounce for Beats is Alpha Phi's annual 36-hour bounce - a - thon, which raises money for the Foundation. This event takes place every spring in front of the Alpha Phi house. The chapter, along with the community, jump on trampolines in shifts to complete the bouncathon. Each year, more than $3,000 is raised for cardiac care. This past year, Alpha Phi was recognized at the Alpha Phi regional conference for their many accomplishments. In particular, the women were proudly awarded Most Improved in Rush. Other highlights include: receiving first place at Freshmen Skits and Outstanding New Member Education and Programming at the Greek Excellence Awards.

Delta

Gamma had a very exciting 2006-2007 school year. They began the year by being named the Homecoming champions and were able to watch their very own Christine Aloia be crowned the 2006 Homecoming Queen. In November, they held their annual philanthropic event, Anchor Splash®, at the pool of the Indiana School for the Blind. Raising more than $4,000, the annual cookout, swimming races and fraternity synchronized swimming competition all proved to be successful and fun events! After Formal Recruitment in January, Delta Gamma welcomed 36 fabulous new members who placed 3rd in Blue Key's Freshman Skits in March. At the Butler University Greek Excellence Awards Ceremony in April, Delta Gamma was honored with Most Outstanding Programming and Most Outstanding Involvement, and sophomore Meghan Speidel was named Butler's Greek Emerging Leader. They were also credited with the Five Star Chapter award. The women of Delta Gamma have excelled in many areas at Butler, from the Top 100 Outstanding Students to the Dean's List, and most of their women are involved in extracurricular activities with many girls holding leadership positions. Delta Gamma looks forward to the upcoming months as they will break ground for their house expansion in May 2007.

The women of Tri Delta had a very exciting and busy year. The year was full of philanthropic events raising money for children's cancer research. In the fall they held Alex's Lemonade Stand in Broad Ripple, during which they handed out lemonade and raised more than $1,500 for the cause. The ladies of Tri Delta also held their annual Flapjack Attack, the Sincerely Yours letter writing campaign, and Trideltathon, which benefited St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. In addition to their many philanthropic events, they also had many opportunities to bond as sisters. They held sisterhood activities such as a haunted house, bowling night, movie nights and games on Schwitzer's lawn. Throughout the year they had two formals and one semi-formal. Their fall formal was held at Fountain Square. Their spring semi-formal, Tahiti Sweetie, was held at Bahama Breeze and their spring formal was held at the Fox and Hound. Tri Delta also participated in all campus events such as Homecoming, Geneva Stunts, Freshman Skits, Spring Sing and Spring Sports. The women of Tri Delta are looking forward to another exciting year at Butler filled with more opportunities to aid the community and develop as sisters.

The official colors of the chapter are royal purple, white and gold, and the official flower of the chapter is the purple iris. Every year, the men of Delta Tau Delta hold TRIKE, a philanthropic event whose proceeds go to support Riley Children's Hospital. The Gamma Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta was founded in 1872 at Butler University. The first initiated class, consisting of only six women, helped establish Gamma as the third chapter nationwide. The Gamma Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta Chapter is one of only two chapters to house the special Kappa Alpha Theta china. In addition, it is also fortunate enough to be one of two chapters to house the unique red rug which is embossed with the fraternity crest. The women of Kappa Alpha Theta strive to uphold the standards their founding members believed to be important. These standards include social, intellectual and moral good. The women of the Gamma Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta pride themselves in their achievements and involvement on Butler's campus. This year, Kappa Alpha Theta earned the highest GPA amongst all of the sororities on Butler's campus. In addition, the women of the Gamma Chapter were able to raise $6,000 for Court Appointed Special Advocates at their annual philanthropy event, Theta Grill-Off. The Thetas also collaborated with the women of Kappa Kappa Gamma to hold a Mr. Butler competition, which raised $5,000 for the Make-A-Wish Foundation. Lastly, the Gamma Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta proudly received the Golden Kite Chapter Award at Grand Convention. This award is given to the top 20 chapters in the nation.

Kappa Kappa Gamma has had a presence on Butler's campus since 1878, and is the longest standing fraternity on campus. The Mu chapter has the key, the wise owl, and the fleur-de-lis as symbols and their colors are light blue and navy blue. The women of Kappa Kappa Gamma support Coburn Place, a shelter for battered women, with their annual event Kappa Kickoff. Additionally, a high value is placed upon scholarship and academia among the women of Kappa Kappa Gamma, so much that there are quiet hours set aside five days of the week for people to work on homework or study in some of the common areas of the house.

 was an exciting semester
 for Pi Beta Phi. They had a lot of the year with Arrowspike. Pi Beta Phi's philanthropy, which raises money for Arrowsong at Ecolab. This was a success with the chapter raising more than $2,000. The Spring philanthropy event, Swing into Spring, which benefits the American Cancer Society, was also a accomplishment raising more than $1400.
 This event was expanded to include a home run derby and a special guest judge for the king contest, Summer from Radio Now 93.1. The following week end the first ever Pi Phi Egg Hunt took place where books were donated to an Indianapolis Public School. Many sisterhood and social events also occurred throughout the year. During the fall semester Pi Phis had sisterhoods at places such as, Pottery By You and Fright Manor, just to name a few. This was in addition to a beautiful formal at Key Bank. Spring semester began with an informal where new members and actives had the opportunity to hang out and have a good time with each other. Throughout the semester, each executive member also hosted her own sister hood. Some of these include sushi making, button making, and movie nights. Pi Phi ended the year with a final formal at Meridian Hills Country Club and lastly, the senior send off.

the Sigma Chi brotherhood. We also began during the summer with Sigma Chi's trip to an international leadership conference in Australia. We also sent most of our executive board to the Sigma Chi Leadership Training Workshop, which is the largest all-greek leadership program. We ended off the first semester with our annual derby days in which we raised just under $4500 for Riley Children's Hospital and the John Huntman Cancer Institute. Derby days also saw an all sorority competition with the sisters of Kappa Alpha Theta winning in overall points. We also co-sponsored Youth Fall Fest with women of Delta Delta Delta. Fall fest is a program for children from the Butler-Tarkington area to come experience a stress free day of fun and games on Butler's campus. This year saw more than 50 kids come out and enjoy the fun. Second semester started with a successful rush as Rho is set to initiate 13 new members. Rho chapter also had a good showing at our annual Sigma Chi Hoosier State Day which is the oldest greek province meeting. We are also proud to again host our annual "light up the night" Co-sponsored with the women of Delta Gamma we place thousands of luminaries all over campus to raise drunk driving awareness. Rho chapter looks forward a strong return of the second oldest tradition in the collegiate world, the Sigma Chi Chanot Race. Look for it at the start of next year's homecoming as all fraternities battle for the title of the Chanot Champions.

University was originally established as Delta Phi Sigma on Jan. 11, 1923. After building a strong reputation on campus, Delta Phi Sigma became the Epsilon Mu chapter of Sigma Nu on May 6, 1926, becoming Butler's fifth national fraternity and the fifth Sigma Nu chapter in Indiana. Having nearly 1,300 members, the Butler chapter of Sigma Nu has consistently been recognized as one of the strongest brotherhoods around. Throughout the past year, the Butler chapter of Sigma Nu hosted its international conclave in Indianapolis, where it was awarded six international awards and was named among the top 10 Sigma Nu chapters in the world. Furthermore, the chapter won Butler's Homecoming competition, was the top fraternity in Spring Sing for the second year in a row, and has consistently claimed the highest fraternity GPA on campus. Having taken a pledge class of 27 fine young men in the 2006-2007 academic year, the men of Sigma Nu are looking forward to another excellent year in 2007-2008.

There has been a chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon on Butler's campus since the Gamma Psi chapter was chartered in 1951. The official colors of the chapter are cherry red and grey, their symbol is the equilateral triangle, and the official flower is the carnation. Like all of the other similar groups on campus, the men of Tau Kappa Epsilon have philanthropic events and support groups that are in need. However, one of the things most commonly associated with the men of Tau Kappa Epsilon, is the way that they spread holiday cheer after Thanksgiving Break every year by playing holiday music for the entire campus to hear, particularly the Butler 'classic' "Dominic the Italian Christmas Donkey."

Although there might not have been as much of a decrease in the commuter population due to the new Apartment Village as the university might have wanted, this might change in future years as Butler's new housing policy requires juniors to live on campus as well. Many students still chose to live off campus this year. Some decided to avoid potential parking problems by finding a house or apartment to rent close enough to campus to walk to class each day. Others felt that they needed a longer distance between school and home and therefore moved far enough from campus to require a short commute to school each day. Some students did not feel living close to campus and having a commute was a big deal since their internships or student teaching placements were close to where they were living. "If I had lived on campus I would have been further from my student teaching placements than if I lived off campus," senior Stacy McGuire, a commuter student, said. "I was lucky to have found an apartment very close to my schools." Although the University is hoping more students live on campus in the future seniors will still be given the option of living off campus and commuting.

A few words from the Editor

Dearest Reader,

If you are reading a letter from the editor at the back of your college yearbook, chances are pretty good you were a bit more closely involved in the process of creating the yearbook. Maybe you were on staff; maybe you donated photos for the cause; maybe you were simply good friends with one of the page designers. In any case, you probably have a slight inkling, at least, of how much blood, sweat and tears go into the production of a yearbook. Lick the pages of this book and you just may get a dose of salt large enough to rival the amount found on McDonald's fries. Thank you for taking the time to read our words, few or many, here at the back of the book.

As this school year came to a close, so too did a chapter in the history of this book, for as the school year came to a close, so too did the Butler careers of several people key to the production of this book.

For five of us, as students, our Butler careers have ended as we have stepped closer to the "real world" through graduation. This book would not have been possible without Kristina Anderson (whose efforts, among others, ensured we were paid, even if the amount justified only a fraction of the work we'd actually done), Anne Poelker (whose efforts to acquire content from the Greek community often seemed to accomplish little by no fault of her own), Michelle Mileham (whose efforts to contribute to the actual content of the book and what appears on the pages were outdone only by her efforts to tolerate silliness that regularly occurred during staff meetings), Chris Bray (whose efforts pretty much always kept things entertaining), and, apparently, myself (whose primary efforts are to blame for this letter).

For one of us, educational plans dictated that her service on the yearbook staff for Butler cease as she interns in Washington, DC in the fall and graduates early; still, this book would not have been possible without Emily McInerney (whose efforts can be held responsible for the fact that we have photos in this yearbook at all, as well as the fact that meetings were never boring).

And finally, for one key person in the production of this yearbook, the end of the year brought the end of her career at Butler, not as a student but as a member of the staff. Although the contribution of an adviser is not readily seen on the pages of a yearbook in the form of photo or page credits, without a doubt, this book would not have been possible without the aid of Stacey Ergang (whose efforts were vital to putting the fear of God in certain members of the Butler community on whom we relied for content we could not acquire on our own).

The amount of work put in by everyone on staff, and especially those listed on this page, can be measured several ways. Most obviously, one can measure in hours and minutes (Anne guesses about 273 hours, but would not clarify if that was on her part alone or her rather low estimate for the entire staff). Some measure in the very blood, sweat and tears mentioned earlier in this letter (according to Emily, "Too many, because really, who counts tears?"). Personally, I measure in quantity of movies used as a distraction during work days ("Shrek": two times; "Shrek 2": two times; "Stir of Echoes": one time; "Fern Gully": two times; "Labryinth": three times; "Gone With the Wind": two times; "Walk the Line": three times; "Cars": one time; "The DaVinci Code": three times; "Mean Girls": two times; and the first [and only] two seasons of the television sitcom "Titus": one time).

As the academic year began, I worried about the fate of the yearbook. When we, the current seniors, inherited it three years ago, we dreamt big. We wanted to drastically improve Butler's yearbook. In our short time here, I felt we had, even in the face of adversity given to The Gallery. (Yes, yearbooks can face adversity, and yes, Butler's definitely has) The adversity was in fact more cause for me to worry about the fate of the book - when you pour so much of yourself into something, the last thing you want is for that effort to be wasted.

Fortunately for us - and the Butler community - we didn't have to worry too terribly much about this. As we graduate and leave Butler, we leave our beloved yearbook The Gallery in the capable hands of future editor-in-chief Christina Lear. We know that The Gallery can only go up from here and that we leave behind a legacy of improvement for it to build upon. And it is secure in this knowledge that I sign off on this, my final letter from the editor, in the last volume of The Gallery that I am fortunate enough and blessed to have helped produce.

The Gallery

The first volume of The Gallery was created by a staff of students at Butler University in Indianapolis, Ind. They operated out of the year book office in Atherton Union 308. The office phone number is (317) 940-9330. The book was published by Jostens, 1312 Highway 48, Clarksville, Ind. 37040. The Jostens representatives were Mike and Luci Conlon.

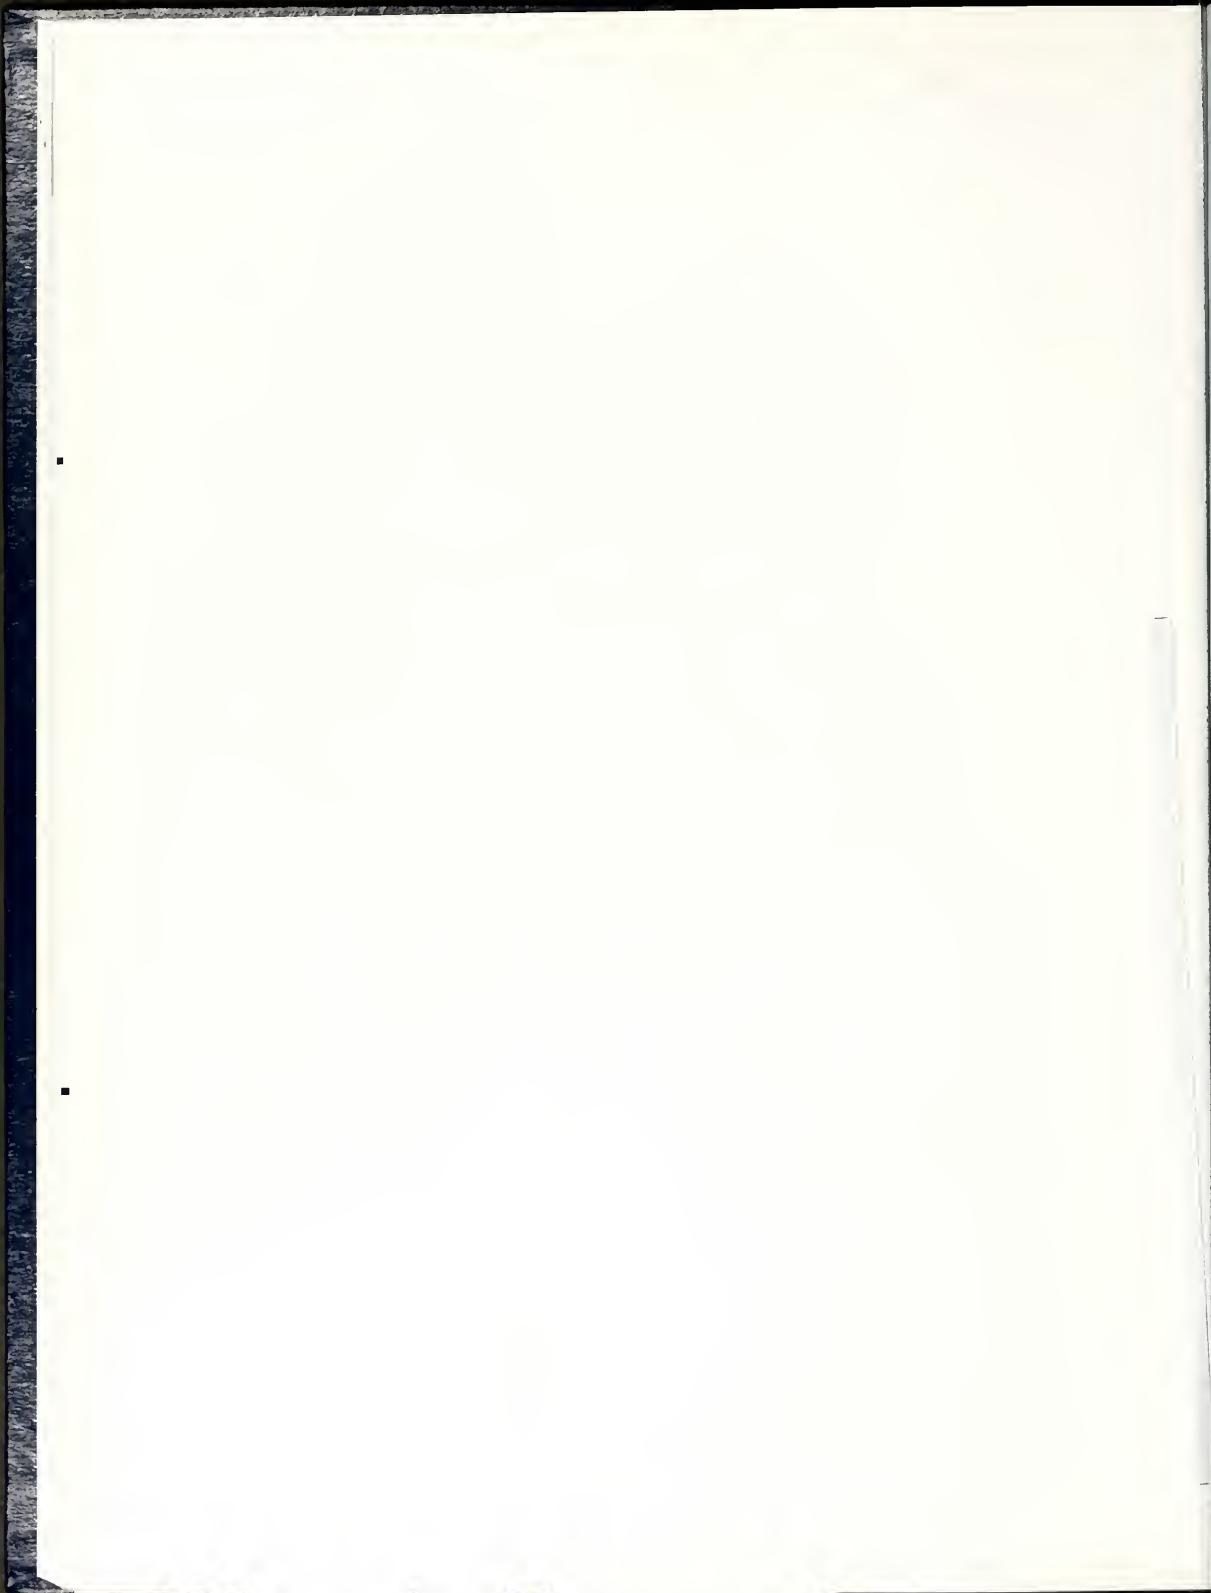

The theme, Our Legacy, was chosen in June during the Jostens yearbook camp hosted on Butler's campus.

The book was produced using Adobe Indesign Creative Suite. Layouts and copy were produced using a Dell Optiplex GX270, affectionately known by the staff as Rhett. The staff was advised by Stacey Ergang.

Album portraits were done by MJM Photography, Inc. The photographer was Jim McAdams.

Pages were designed by the appropriate section editors. Dividers were designed by the editor-in-chief. All other spreads were designed by the staff member named.

Fonts and sizes varied throughout the book. The thematic fonts were AYT Cheers, AYT Elegance, and AYT Nicole.
